Why is my samsung remote volume not working

Find out what to do if you need help with volume or other features of your Siri remote control, Apple TV Remote or home theater remote control. Your Apple TV 4K or Apple TV HD should automatically detect the TV or receiver that connects it and program your Siri Remote or Apple TV Remote1 to control the power supply and HDMI input. Before using the Siri or Apple TV Remote remote control to control the TV or receiver, uncheck the path between the remote and the front of the TV or receiver. Volume control works normally using the IR2 sensor on the front of your equipment. If the volume, power or HDMI selection does not work automatically for you, you may need to program the remote control for the volume or turn on HDMI-CEC on your TV or receiver. You can use a home theater remote control, such as a network-based remote control for home-control systems or an infrared remote control (also known as a universal remote control,) to control your Apple TV. To set up your home theater remote control to control your Apple TV: Add your Apple TV to the Home app and make sure you assign it to a room. Add remote control to the Home app on an iOS or iPadOS device and make sure you assign it to a room. After adding the remote control to the Home app, you can use it to control any Apple TV you have in your home. To learn different ways you can use the remote control to control your Apple TV, go to Settings > Remote Controls and Devices and select Learn Remote. If you have any problems with the remote control or want to know more about using the remote control to control Apple TV, please contact the manufacturer or visit their website. If you need help with volume or other features of Siri Remote or Apple TV Remote, you may need to program your Siri Remote or Apple TV Remoteor make sure that HDMI-CEC is on. If volume control is not automatically working, you can manually program the Siri Remote or Apple TV Remote: On your Apple TV 4K or Apple TV HD, go to Settings > Remote controls and devices > Volume control. Select Learn New Device. Follow the steps on the screen forSiri Remote or Apple TV Remote Control to control the volume for television or receiver. Your Siri Remote or Apple TV The remote control can control the volume for both the television and the receiver, but can not control both simultaneously. If some features do not work, check the following: Make sure your TV or receiver offers HDMI-CEC support. For help, ask the TV manufacturer or check the manual. Check that HDMI-CEC is activated in the TV or receiver menu. Use the remote control that came with your equipment. Since manufacturers often have different names for HDMI-CEC, they search for a setting that ends in "Link" or "Sync". Here are some examples: LG: SimpLink Philips: EasyLink Samsung: Anynet+ Sharp: Aquos Link Sony: BRAVIA Sync Apple TV 4K and Apple TV HD ships with the same remote control everywhere. In the countries and regions that support Siri, the remote is called Siri Remote. Elsewhere, it's called Apple TV Remote. Siri works on both remote controls until you are in a country or region that supports Siri. While volume control works normally using the IR sensor on the front of the TV or receiver, some receivers use HDMI-CEC instead. With the volume via HDMI-CEC, you do not need a clear path between the remote and the front of the receiver.
